Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 24 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly cloudy. Patchy rain.

Today:
A mainly dry morning with any overnight mist and fog soon lifting. It will be mostly cloudy and patchy rain is expected during the afternoon, but still dry for most. Winds gradually freshening from the east. Rather mild. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloudy this evening and overnight with patchy light rain at times, although mainly dry by dawn. Breezy, strong easterly winds developing around the coast. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
It will be cloudy and windy on Christmas Day. Mainly dry in the morning, but turning wet at times during the afternoon and evening. Strong to gale force coastal winds. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Mostly cloudy with showers or some longer outbreaks of rain on Boxing Day, but winds easing. Some drier and brighter spells on Monday, but rain at times on Tuesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.